TO MRS. H. MOORE. Ah! who can scan the Mother's heart, Under bereavements thrilling smart; Go ask the Angels to unroll, Unveil her grief, unveil her soul. Say, cans't there aught on earth be found To heal the deep and bleeding wound, And throw consoling balm around?

Alas! the boon cannot be given; Beside, there's none save a blessed heaven. Although she's gone-we all must die, God called her home to him on high; And there with angels round the throne Is thy loved child, in bright array, List! Monther, list! her swelling lay.

E'en there from Paradise above, Looks down thy child on earth in love; In pæans loud her voice doth blend, "Zamari is her guardian friend, And on the bless'd one doth attend.

Moura not, 'twas God who called the lovely child Oh! she has gone to bloom in an etherial day; On zephyr's wings by angels gently blown,

E'en there she smiles to welcome her loved kindred MARIA B. BROWN. Indianapolis, Oct. 9th.

Rose her bless'd spirit up to heaven's throne,

Lucian Holland, the celebrated antipodean equilibriat will appear on the Magic Ladder. The extraordinary manner in which this performer reverses the laws of gravitation and attraction, has been the surprise of phi o-ophers and the wonder of the public. Elevated at a fearful height, his feet perform the different function d his hands, and while becaused on an atmost incredible space, executes a rotary motion with no other assistance than that which the muscles of the head and shoulders afford.
